

Greetings! This comment concerns a rumor that the Sinclair Corporation is broadcasting a political and partisan film on major national channels. Would there be a possibility of our government enforcing the law, just this one time? I realize that the present administration has disregarded the rules of communication and fair play since illegally assuming office, the present fiscal mountain of unpaid debt and graft in the vice-presidential office, oh, and our presidential vacation debts ...How could I be so naive to ask for an unnamed hero to stand up and defend our rights to unbiased telecommunications? As the public speaker for major firms always recommend, if we don't like what is on TV, just turn it off. Is that what you will say? Haliburton and Carlyle commercials, Florida vacations? Please advise what steps to take legally.
